Course Proposal Information

Thank you for your interest in teaching Community Education classes. Brenham Community Education is a partnership with Brenham Independent School District, Blinn College, and the City of Brenham.

Teaching a Community Education course is a great way to share your knowledge and skills with members of the community. There is no minimum requirement or educational degree to be an instructor. Community Education instructors have a passion for the subject they teach and a level of professionalism that reflects well on our community. Community Education classes include health and fitness, technology, arts and crafts, cooking, music and dance, business and financial, and adult enrichment.

How long are the classes?

Programs vary in length and time and are usually offered as part of a term. Community Education welcomes and encourages inquiries and suggestions from the community regarding future planning of future classes and programs. Programs are added as needs and interests are identified. If you have a new course idea, or have a friend who would like to teach, you are encouraged to contact Brenham Community Education to explore the possibility of offering the class.

How much is the pay?

The fees for Community Education classes vary according to number of class hours, facilitator costs and materials. Every effort is made to keep fees affordable. Call the office to discuss pay in more details.

What if no one signs up for my class?

Sometimes that happens. If there are not enough participants to make the class minimum the class will be canceled with no obligation to either party.

Community Education is a service for the community. We reserve the right to reject or modify any classes that do not fit the guidelines for Brenham Community Education.
